

Orientation Outline

COVID and WASH- Resuming Office

LENGTH: 1.5 hours

1. ORIENTATION DESCRIPTION

This orientation package is primarily developed for the specific activities to be implemented in the field focuses on discussing preparatory measures that an organization needs to cover while resuming office. With the descending number of cases of COVID, people are going for new normal and are resuming office and moving around. However, the risk of disease transmission has not decreased and one need to be fully aware on preventing the disease transmission.

In the orientation, it is discussed in detail about the risk that one might encounter while attending office. To this, the main session is dedicated towards the preparatory measures to combat the transmission of the disease at an organizational and individual level.

2. OBJECTIVES

The general objective of the orientation is to discuss the preparatory measures for COVID prevention while resuming office. However, the specific objectives of the orientation package are as follow:

- Discuss the risk of COVID contamination while resuming office
- Describe all preparatory measures to prevent the transmission of COVID-19 at organizational and individual level

3. PARTICIPANTS

The orientation is targeted towards officers or senior level staffs of an organization who are responsible for the preparation for the prevention of COVID-19, while resuming office.

4. METHODS OF INSTRUCTION

This is online based orientation and it is targeted to deliver through the use of various online applications such as zoom, miro, teams, etc. This orientation includes various activities like small group discussion (room break-out), polling, question and answer which make this orientation, interactive and participatory rather than one way delivery.
